

We All Need Water!

Join us to learn about the water resources that are so important to our region, local projects to improve and protect our water and things you can do to help!

Monday, March 27, 2017
8 am to 3 pm
Curris Center Small Ballroom
Murray State University

Educational seminars covering a variety of topics will be occurring throughout the day:

- Algal bloom research
- Silver carp and local fisheries
- Kentucky Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources
- Local stream and wetland restoration projects
- Four Rivers Watershed Watch Volunteer Stream Monitoring Program
- Local water monitoring projects

Educational booths and demonstrations will be set up outside the Curris Center Small Ballroom and will include information on local organizations and what you can do to help:

- Clarks River National Wildlife Refuge
- City of Murray Stormwater Department
- Calloway County Conservation District
- Calloway County Cooperative Extension Program
- Calloway County Master Gardeners
- The Nature Conservancy
- US Department of Agriculture
- Murray State University Hancock Biological Station
- Murray State University Watershed Studies Institute
- Great Rivers Sierra Club
- Murray Environmental Student Society

This event is free and open for all to attend.

Registration for this event is not required, but is encouraged. To register, email Maggie Morgan at maggie.morgan@jpf.org.

Sponsored By:

